

Students Achieve Bachelor of Science in Podology

A group of enthusiastic pedicurists have achieved the first ever Bachelor of Science (BSc.) in Podology at the Commonwealth University of Health Sciences in St. Kitts, West Indies, advancing pedicure education to a new level. American and Canadian students who had completed levels one through four of education offered at the North American School of Podology (NASP) gathered on the Caribbean island in January 2006 to participate in a five-day residency to obtain the designation.
